The Indiana Hoosiers Are Your 2025-26 College Football National Champions

MIAMI (AP) — A historic season for Fernando Mendoza ended with a national title. The Heisman Trophy winner didn't have his best statistical game Monday night, but he came up big when it mattered. He completed 16 of 27 passes for 186 yards and ran the ball six times, one of which was for a pivotal 12-yard touchdown. Offensive momentum slowed for Indiana in the third quarter and the Hoosiers punted three times. Mendoza had zero passing yards and was sacked three times. Early in the fourth, the Hurricanes cut a game-long deficit to three points after a 3-yard rushing score from Mark Fletcher Jr. But then Mendoza rose to the occasion. He led the Hoosiers on a 12-play, 75-yard drive. He converted two crucial fourth downs, hitting Charlie Becker for an improbable 19-yard reception on a 4th-and-5, and less than a minute later, ran the ball in for a 12-yard touchdown on a 4th-and-4. It wasn't an easy trip into the end zone. Jakobe Thomas and Wesley Bissainthe collided with Mendoza hard enough for him to nearly topple over. But he caught himself with his hand. With Ahmad Moten Sr. on his tail, and Mohamed Toure and Xavier Lucas closing in, the 6-foot-5 quarterback used every inch to arch over into the end zone. "I'll die for my team," Mendoza said. "Whatever they need me to do, they need me to take a shot to the front or back, I'm going to die for my team out there because I know they'll do the same thing for me. That's what makes this national championship so special." It was the type of play that has surprised competitors all season long. Mendoza, known as a pocket passer, can weave through a defense on foot better than most would expect. He averaged 3.4 yards per carry this season, and including the title game, has rushed for seven TDs. Coach Curt Cignetti said the play was installed specifically for this game. "We put it in for this game," Cignetti said after Indiana claimed its first national title. "It was a quarterback draw, but it was blocked differently. And we rolled the dice and said they're going to be in (the same defense) again. We blocked it well, he broke a tackle or two and got into the end zone." The Hurricanes responded with a touchdown on the ensuing drive, but Mendoza responded accordingly. He found Becker for a near-identical 19-yard catch on a critical third down. It extended the drive long enough to give Indiana the chance to convert a 35-yard field goal and take a 27-21 lead. On the next drive, Jamari Sharpe picked off

Miami quarterback Carson Beck to ice the game. Mendoza did it all in front of Raiders owner Mark Davis, general manager John Spytek and minority owner Tom Brady — all in attendance at Hard Rock Stadium. If the Raiders use their No. 1 pick on Mendoza, he would become the sixth quarterback to win the Heisman, national championship and be drafted first overall.

Balancing Community Rights – ACLU’s Strong Arming in Loogootee, Indiana2

As hostility in Loogootee, Indiana, continues to escalate over the ACLU’s recent legal challenge to the city’s PrideFest, local conversations have shifted slightly away from traditional topics like the historic Indiana Hoosiers football journey to the College Football National Championship, high school basketball, or the high school band’s activities. Instead, residents, particularly long-time residents, are increasingly frustrated with the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) and its perceived attempts to exert influence over their community. Two weeks ago, the ACLU filed two lawsuits against the city concerning a new ordinance designed to prevent the annual Loogootee PrideFest from taking place in the public square. The organization contended that this ordinance infringed upon First Amendment rights. Previously, an ordinance similar in language was struck down as unconstitutional by the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Indiana in August 2025. That ruling permitted the PrideFest to proceed, despite the city passing a new ordinance containing many of the same provisions as the invalidated law. Notably, the new ordinance included two provisions that the court had already declared unconstitutional and issued injunctions against. Ken Falk, the legal director of the ACLU of Indiana, emphasized the legal violations, stating, “Court orders must be obeyed, and Loogootee, by enacting an ordinance leading to accusations of inconsistency—particularly regarding its efforts on LGBTQ+ rights and racial justice. Many in Loogootee had spoken that the ACLU is overly aggressive, accusing it of strong-arming communities through legal tactics that pressure local governments to cancel or alter events, often ignoring community preferences and fueling divisions. This isn’t a new pattern for the ACLU. In 2024, in response to community concerns, the city made logistical adjustments, allowing organizers of the Pride event to relocate to alternative venues, such as local parks and other downtown areas such as a new Green Space built just for events such as PrideFest. But this year, the situation appears different. The ACLU has explicitly cited Loogootee’s a with provisions already enjoined, is in contempt of lawful court orders. Furthermore, this ordinance continues Loogootee’s pattern of attempting to unconstitutionally restrict celebrations of the LGBTQ+ community. We will continue to vigorously defend our clients’ right to hold their event at their preferred location in the heart of Loogootee.” This controversy has significant implications for the city’s future. The ACLU’s history of defending free speech has included supporting controversial groups such as neo-Nazis and opposing legislation like the National Labor Relations Act, often citing free speech rights as justification. However, internally, the organization has faced debates over its focus areas, ctions in its legal filings, signaling ongoing conflict. Meanwhile, within the community, voices like Daniel P.’s— a resident who prefers to keep his identity private—offer a different perspective. Identifying as gay, P. expressed disappointment with the limited spaces for open expression beyond Pride-related events. “I don’t need a pride parade to be who I am, and I’ve never felt the need for one in Loogootee,” he shared on a local news forum. “People know me, greet me at the store, and that’s enough. My experiences abroad gave me the confidence to see my hometown not as a battleground but as home. I apologize to residents for the recent actions by the ACLU of Indiana, which seem to turn a non-issue into division.” P. also highlighted our reporting on the ongoing challenges the community faces regarding LGBTQ+ issues and how the city has responded to these challenges, referencing the Owen County PrideFest when Owen County commissioners proposed a “special events” ordinance with high security fees over $1,500, with new rules and restrictions banning events on the courthouse square. After public outcry and revisions, this bill would pass in December 2019 amid controversy, closing courthouse restrooms during events and prohibiting square use, forcing organizers to adapt. “This saga in Loogootee mirrors what happened in Spencer, Owen County, where a push for Pride events became a divisive tool that altered the community’s fabric.” He said, “Spencer Pride Festival began modestly but grew, attracting thousands to the town of around 2,200.” The event founders, Tim and Tracy Brown-Salsman, are the founders of a local LGBTQ+ club at the library and organizers of Pride events. The couple was the first same-sex married couple in Martin County, Indiana, who married in 2015 and celebrated what was then the last same-sex marriage legally performed in Indiana before the U.S. Supreme Court’s landmark decision in June 2015 legalizing such marriages nationwide. . Having visited with Tim and Tracy at the old J&R Tool Shop’s printing department at my uncle’s house, I always described them as humorous and lively individuals who hold strong views about what Loogootee should be. Many residents, however, remain “set in their ways,” with little exposure to any LGBTQ+ individuals, despite some feeling at home within the community. I will say they were the first ever people I met who identified as LGBTQ+. That exposed me to a lot, including their framework and history; however, as their trophies shine, a city has to suffer with the weight of mounted legal pressure and public outcry. Earlier, we discussed how the ACLU has historically influenced communities by supporting marginalized organizations. The strong arming of communities has lasted decades and even a century and is happening again in Loogootee. For example, in 1943, the ACLU defended Jehovah’s Witness children who refused to salute the American flag and won. It was a win for religious freedom but seen by some as disrespecting national symbols and patriotic duty. In 1977, the organization also defended the rights of neo-Nazis to march in Skokie, Illinois—a town with many Holocaust survivors—by asserting First Amendment protections for all speech, including hateful speech. Yes, hateful speech. Many members of the Jewish community saw the ACLU’s defense of the Nazis as a betrayal and an overreach.

Many residents yearn for more than silent acceptance—they desire the freedom to express themselves openly, but not include the ACLU, which would drown the city in more debt and in even more legal fees. Someone can eventually hold your event, but not at the expense of putting the city under fire when they don’t have the manpower to put out the flames. If Indiana beats Miami on Monday, Jan. 19, at the National Championship game, I would celebrate the victory in my home, with my friends, my family, or in my community with other Hoosier fans, but I would never include the ACLU in a long-term legal battle in any case because a city policeman said that I couldn’t celebrate the win in the streets. One example that hit me different in college was when Indiana University Social Work professor Jessica Adams delivered a presentation on White Supremacy. Instead of addressing concerns through the appropriate channels within the Social Work school, a student reported the issue directly to a State Senator, leading to a massive investigation and a near-firing of the Professor. It is unfair to tarnish a professor’s reputation over a controversial lecture. Regardless of the points of view, students have the right to discuss their concerns with faculty or request future revisions to the folk giving the presentation, but expressing frustration to a State Congressman is beyond inappropriate. The demographics of Loogootee reflect a conservative, predominantly White community, with a median age of 40 and notable growth in the youth and senior populations—specifically a 16% increase in children and seniors aged 0-9, 20-29, and 60-69. According to the latest Census data, approximately 95% of residents are White, and 79% voted for President Trump in 2024. Indiana, as a state, ranks poorly for LGBTQ+ residents, with only 5.4% of the population identifying as LGBTQ+. In this climate, the organizers have perceived their grievances by not voicing actions to Mayor Ader, or to anyone sitting on the board, including Attorney Teverbaugh, or even Mark McAtee. This behavior cannot continue in the city of Loogootee, and actions such as contacting the ACLU to advocate for Pride events in January, when more people are confident about other events in this month than the Pride event in September, are considered excessive or extreme. Such efforts often provoke strong reactions, with community members feeling that their local values and traditions are being challenged and ignored. Despite these tensions, I believe in the power of speech. The community’s pulse remains challenged, but I believe Loogootee in this case cannot back down. They can prove to the state that they can support the needs of value and the wants to party, but in respects to many residents who remain resistant to change, feeling unexposed to LGBTQ+ individuals, others seek greater misunderstanding and acceptance. The ongoing legal battles and public debates highlight the profound divide and the challenge of balancing community values with individual rights. This community does not deserve this kind of treatment. As the legal disputes continue and community conversations unfold, the future of Loogootee remains uncertain. The town’s response to these conflicts will likely shape its identity moving forward, determining whether it can bridge the gap between tradition and progress or if division will deepen further

To the Editor,

There's a lot of information and activity regarding the Mid-States Corridor:

On WIBC's Kendall & Casey Show the Mid-States Corridor has been a hot topic since last week. They feature it daily.

INDOT announced they have canceled, postponed or reduced the scope of over 300 projects around the state, and are continuing to so. However, the Mid-States Corridor has not been touched.

Huntingburg's City Council has stated they cannot afford to repair 4th Street where the pavers are causing trip and fall accidents.

The next Property Rights Alliance meeting will be Thursday, Jan 22 at 6pm at the Schnitzelbank. Hope to see you all there! Bring friends! Last week's meeting was a lulu! A big THANK YOU to all who came!

Barr Reeve Edges Loogootee 47-42 in Thrilling Basketball Clash

With over 5,000 people watching another rendition of the Loogootee vs. Barr Reeve rivalry, one of the oldest duels in the state of Indiana, the feeling of a national championship may be the buzz in nearby Bloomington; however, as the old attitude goes, in 49 states it is just basketball... but not in Indiana. While in nearby Bloomington, the focus on college basketball is intense, with the buzz centered around a potential national championship run by Indiana University, the sentiment elsewhere in the state tells a different story. For many Hoosiers, basketball is more than just a game; it's a shared history, a cultural cornerstone that shapes identities and community bonds. From youth leagues to high school championships, basketball's influence permeates every level of life in Indiana. Although many around the state cite Indiana's football success, these two schools still call basketball their favorite longtime passion, and the game did not disappoint tonight. Loogootee attempted to gain possession of the game early, ending with a two point lead over their crosstown rivals in Barr Reeve in the first quarter, 12-10 and then again going into halftime as they again led Barr Reeve 21-19. As the third quarter roled along, Barr Reeve took their shots. Some small and some large, but Barr Reeve scored as top players such as A.J. Foster committed two fouls close to the end of the game. Loogootee's Coach, Josh Thompson, was even issued a warning by the refs in the second half which turned the game over its head for the Lions to capatilize on major opportunities.

For Barr Reeve they used Loogootee's fouls and fuel. The first two quarters were a back-and-forth affair with each team attempting to hit buckets and clear the lane for a win that would not come easily. However, Loogootee, which have been home to comebacks throughout this season came out of the second half looking dissolved at points as Barr Reeve took a slight advantage to take the lead to win the game 47-42. The Vikings will jump to 12-1 on the year, 2nd in Blue Chips Conference play with a 3-0 record as the Loogootee Lions fall 12-4 after this conference loss. Barr Reeve will play Wood Memorial on the road at 7:30 p.m. on Jan. 23 and then play North Daviess at home the next day. The Lions will once again play at Shoals High School on Jan. 23 at 7:30 p.m. with a home match against Bloomfield at 7:30 p.m. the next day. Final Box Score: First Quarter Loogootee: 12- Barr Reeve 10 Second Quarter: Loogootee 21 – Barr Reeve 19 Third Quarter: Loogootee 32- Barr Reeve 37 Fourth Quarter: Loogootee 42 – Barr Reeve 47

DIAMOND AND HAWKINS COMBINE FOR 49 TO BEAT LADY RAIDERS

The Lady Lions traveled to historic Memorial Stadium in Huntingburg on Saturday afternoon for a matinee matchup with the Southridge Lady Raiders. The game opened with back-and-forth action, as freshman Lydia Hawkins and junior Alaina Diamond combined for the first 21 points for the Lady Lions. Their scoring surge helped Loogootee build a 14–9 lead after the opening quarter, a stretch capped by a Sophia Toy three-pointer to break up the Hawkins–Diamond run. Hawkins opened the second quarter with an old-fashioned three-point play, followed by Ava Jeffers finding Diamond down low for another basket. The Lady Lions continued to control the pace and headed into halftime with a 29–18 advantage. Loogootee put the game away in the third quarter, pouring in 17 points. The scoring started with Hawkins finding Alexis Heckard underneath, then Diamond caught fire with a nine-point run that included a pair of free throws and a three-pointer. Hawkins answered with another and-one on a reverse layup and followed it with a coast-to-coast finish for a five-point run of her own. A Jeffers free throw, another Diamond drive, and Hawkins' third and-one of the night pushed the Lady Lions' lead to 52–22. The Lady Lions closed the game strong. Jeffers found Diamond in transition, Mkenna Gregory scored on a drive, and Toy finished the afternoon with a five-point run to seal a convincing 62–26 victory. The win moves Loogootee to 13–5 on the season. Individual Statistics: Alaina Diamond: 26 points on 9/14 shooting, 6/9 FT, 5 rebounds, 4 blocks Lydia Hawkins: 23 points on 9/14 shooting, 5/7 FT, 10 rebounds, 3 assists, 4 steals Sophia Toy: 8 points (2/3 from three), 3 rebounds, 3 assists Alexis Heckard: 2 points, 3 assists Mkenna Gregory: 2 points, 3 rebounds Ava Jeffers: 1 point, 5 rebounds The Lady Lions return to action Thursday night on the road at Northeast Dubois.

Oliver “Mike” Davis March 29, 1943 - January 17, 2026

Oliver Michael “Mike” Davis, 82, of Loogootee, Indiana passed away on Saturday January 17, 2026, at Eastgate Nursing Home in Washington, Indiana.

He was born on March 29, 1943, in Washington, Indiana to the late Oliver Perry and Anna Laura (Sinnott) Davis.

Mike was a life-long mechanic, he was known to have developed a patent on an industrial tie – down that could be used in truck beds to secure anything that needed to be transported. He both made and marketed the tie-downs. He enjoyed developing marketing ideas. Mike worked with the Monroe Custom Bodies Team in promoting his tie-downs and their services at several conventions.

Mike’s passions were Indy Cars, Indy Lights, and Dirt Racing. He contributed to the racing industry in many ways, such as working on several Pit Crews (George Bignotti, John Menard, AL Unser, Gary Bettenhausen, and Bob Lazier). Mike also worked on the cars for AFS Indy Lights car owner and driver, Gary Peterson. Walking with him in the pits of the many national Indy tracks it seemed as everyone knew him. During the month of May, you could always find him at the Indy 500 track working in numerous different capacities over several years. He also traveled both nationally and internationally with Indy racing teams.

In later years, he would tell many fascinating racing stories to anyone he met.

Mike loved animals of many different kinds, for example, he made a pet out of a wild albino skunk. However, he loved his dogs, Sugar and Jason; but his special love was his sister’s mini- Dachshund, Sydnie, who was always next to him. Mike will be missed by his family and many, many friends.

He is preceded in death by his parents, and bother-in-law, Gary Woodfork.

Mike is survived by a half-brother, Roland L. (Ruth) Fegan, and sister, Sue Ann Woodfork of Loogootee, Mary Elaine Webb of Evansville, Kathryn Jean “Kathy” Davis of Loogootee, several nieces and nephews, great- nieces and nephews, one step-nephew, and two great step-nephews. He liked to tease all of them and teach them about things such as coin collecting, which was another passion and passed on his love for cars.

A Mass of Christian Burial will be celebrated by the Very Rev. J. Kenneth Walker at 11:00 A.M Friday January 23, 2026, at St. John the Evangelist Catholic Church. Visitation will be held on the same day from 9:00 A.M until 10:45 A.M at the Church. Burial will follow in St. John Catholic Cemetery. A meal will be served for friends and family at the lower level of the St. John Center.

In lieu of flowers memorial contributions can be made to St. John the Evangelist Church.
